STAMPS ON BILLS OF LADING.

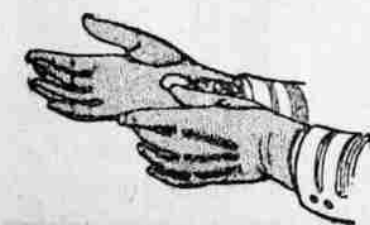

Next Tuesday the business community of Ogden will begin to realize that a war tax is being applied, as on that date all business houses shipping goods must attach a one-cent war revenue stamp to every bill of lading.

There are hundreds of bills of lading prepared each week in Ogden, requiring a large supply of stamps, with only a very limited number of stamps in the city. Our merchants, in order to avoid a tie up in their out-of-town trade, are urged by the local railroad officials to send to the internal revenue collector's office in Helena for the necessary stamps.

This is important and The Standard gives emphasis to the fact by making this editorial comment.

COMMON COLD NEEDS ATTENTION.

A doctor warns the public that the ordinary cold is to be as much guarded against as some of the common ailments that call for quarantine. He says there is no doubt that a cold is contagious and easily passed on from a sufferer to an innocent and so far unaffected bystander. If more people would realize that simple fact there would be fewer colds. Isolation of the person with a cold is the only certain preventive against its spread to others. Isolation, especially in particular families, is, of course, in large measure impracticable. We lock our children up when they are threatened or afflicted with whooping cough, or measles, or chicken pox or with any of the even milder ailments

Black Gloves That Wear

That "the best" is never too good in a black glove is the conclusion reached by all who risk an inferior kid or suede.

Centmeri Black Gloves Give Satisfaction

While not more expensive than any good black kid or suede, the exceptional wearing qualities of these gloves place them above all others less expertly made.

One standard of quality. Every glove "the best" at the price that can be made.

of childhood, and health departments everywhere, of course, enforce the most rigorous quarantine against the deadliest diseases which, if not so proceeded against, would spread death throughout a whole city. But we take no such measures in the matter of colds.

"Now, however, there is a general effort to impress upon the general public the prudence and the wisdom of taking similar precautions against the spread of the common cold. The public health as well as private comfort both would profit if general need were given to the latest warnings of the department of health and charities as to the dangers involved in catching cold. To remind people that pneumonia and consumption often have their origin in a common cold ought in itself to be enough to lead them to guard against what is in its after effects oftentimes one of the most dangerous of diseases."

EXTRA BURDENS NOT REQUIRED.

"The railroad commission of Georgia, realizing the present serious financial predicament of the railroads," says the Railway Age Gazette, "has written a letter to the Southern Railway to the effect that in view of the material decrease in the revenues of carriers, the commission, until the present financial depression is relieved, will not impose on any of the roads any expenditures for new stations, warehouses, terminal facilities, etc., except such as are absolutely necessary."

This is the right thing to do. The big roads are embarrassed and any call for extraordinary expenditures might prove disastrous. Under present financial distress, all the railroads are economizing to the fullest extent.

HELPING THE POOR AT HOME.

One of our local ministers, who is in close touch with charity work, says the time has arrived when Ogden must begin to plan to care for the needy at home instead of centering our very best efforts on the Red Cross. He declares there are families here in destitute circumstances and, on a late visit to Salt Lake, he met fellow lodgers who informed him they were burdened with poor members coming in from the outside who had been drawn to Utah by reports of prosperity in this state.

Charity certainly commences at home. Our own unfortunate first must be cared for and then, if we have anything left, the hungry in the war zone are entitled to our attention.

What poverty exists in Ogden is among strangers, but even those we do not know, who are in our presence, deserve our sympathy when beset with the sting of adversity, particularly if the sufferers are women and children.

At present Ogden apparently is in a position to not only care for the extremely poor, but also to do its fair share in ameliorating conditions in Belgium and other foreign centers of famine.

RETURN OF THE TIDE IN BUSINESS.

Low ebb in business was reached a month ago. That is the opinion of The Standard, which is borne out by the business reports of Dun's Review and Bradstreet's.

Dun's Review for this week makes this statement:

"Domestic business continues subnormal in volume, but there are many signs of quickening activity due to the confidence inspired by recent important financial developments. Cold weather is helping retail distribution and there is some improvement in the wholesale jobbing trade, while collections are reported as easier. Advances from most of the important commercial centers indicate a trend toward better conditions. Bank clearings and railroad gross earnings, however, still show heavy decreases as compared with last year, the reduction in the latter in the first two weeks of November amounting to 12.1 per cent. In the iron and steel trade, while the output remains much below capacity, there is, nevertheless, evidence of an improving domestic demand in addition to larger foreign orders. Rapid progress is being made in the restoration of export trade."

War orders are beginning to stir up many lines of business and the restoration of the export trade is reopening many mills.

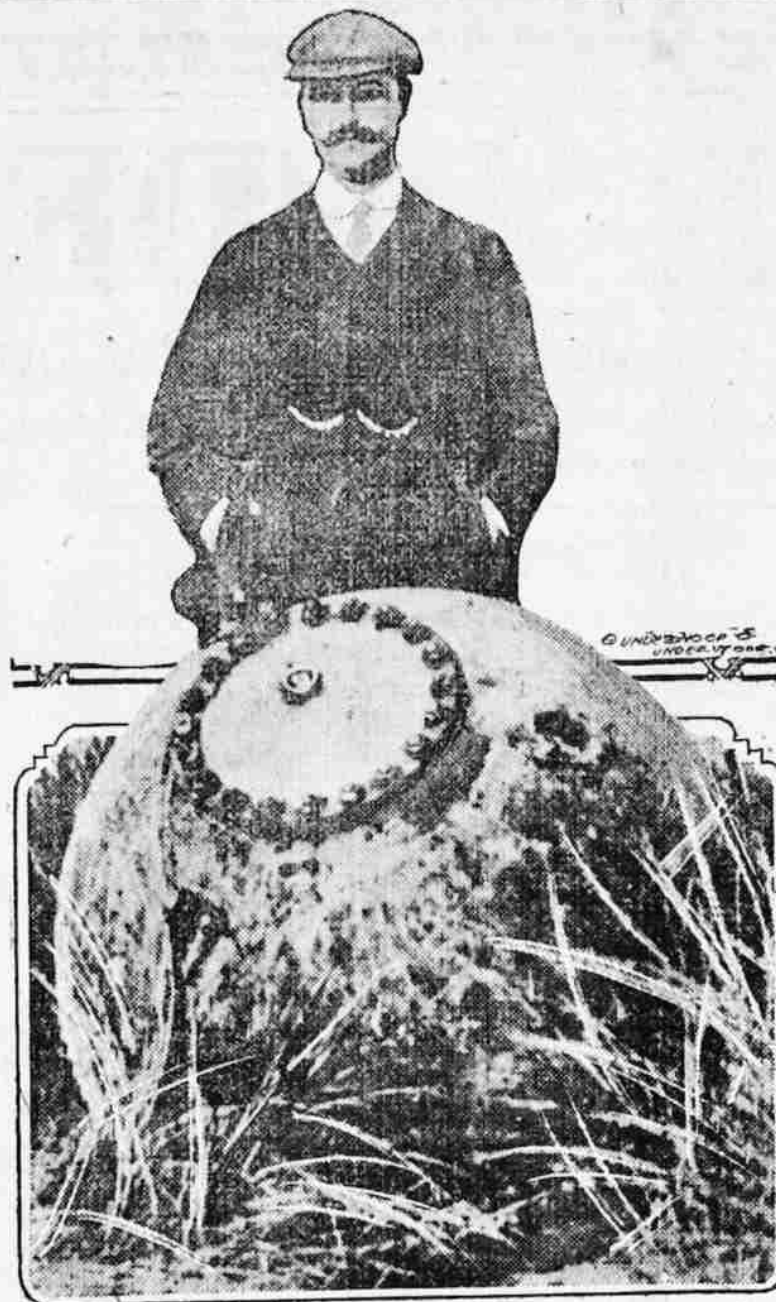

Soon the effects of the regional banks will be felt and by spring this country should be in a fairly prosperous condition.

REPUBLICAN POLICY WOULD BE A GREAT HELP.

An American manufacturer declares that there is no great need of us seeking wider foreign markets while our home markets are in part neglected. He says:

"The finest stroke American business could perpetrate would be to seize his home market, and seize it so firmly that we could keep it in all the future. For instance, take dyes, cotton and cotton cloths. It always seemed ridiculous to me that we raise most of the world's cotton and then ship to other countries a big bulk of what we raise, to be manufactured. Even the part we ourselves manufacture has to be finished with foreign materials; the Germans provide us with nearly all the dyes we use. So it appears that we raise the raw cotton, send most of it away to be manufactured, and keep the remainder to make up at home, and when it's woven into cloth we finish it with German dyes! There will be no German dyes for us after a month or so; supplies on hand will be exhausted. What are we to do

DEADLY GERMAN MINE WASHED ASHORE

Here is one of the deadly German mines with which the North sea was sown early in the war. It was washed ashore. A number of persons have been killed in Holland by these mines washing on the shore of that country and exploding.

then Why not make our own?

"No reason at all. There's no mystery about them. We could make them, only, like so many other things that we ought to do, we've never bothered to do it. Now we've got to, and we will. I learn that interests are already organizing to take up the manufacture on a big scale. That means capturing a big home market. It means that in future we will make our own dyes, or cloth industries will be more independent because we make them, and we will have this big business in our own hands instead of having it make us tributary to Germany."

It is to be regretted that the Republicans are not in power in the nation, believing as they do in a protective tariff. Many of the foreign importations, temporarily shut off by the war, could be permanently excluded, if our American investors and manufacturers were encouraged to the extent of being assured that, any new industries which they might now start in an effort to supplant foreign products, would be safeguarded after the great conflict by a tariff large enough to prevent unfair competition from abroad.

The Skin and Not the Blood.

Until recently it has been a generally accepted theory that eczema was a disease of the blood. Scientific investigations have taught us that eczema is not a blood disease and curable through the skin alone. Meritol Eczema Remedy is applied directly to the diseased skin. Do not delay trying Meritol Eczema Remedy. Prices 50c and $1.00. Culley Drug Co., Local Agency, Ogden, Utah.

HOUSE OF ROMANOFF HAS GREAT RECORD

Many would challenge the statement that the House of Romanoff has been the most progressive ruling house in Europe, but many historians say that such is the fact. Russia and the Czars are little known to Americans. Americans read of their defects but not of their good works. In many ways, Russia is leading the world today, for which praise is due to the Romanoffs. Their unique origin as a reigning family and the lessons of their eccentric, though wonderful, career in leading a peculiar people, will be the Sunday night theme in First Presbyterian church. Mrs. Post and Miss Scott will be the soloists.

MUSICAL AT FIRST METHODIST CHURCH IS A SUCCESS

A musical program of high excellence was listened to with unalloyed pleasure last night by a fair-sized audience in the First Methodist church. The recital was given by local singers and musicians and included some exceptionally ambitious numbers. In the opinion of those who were fortunate enough to hear the program, there were no features as it was finely arranged and each number was rendered in a most artistic and pleasing way.

In view of Miss Rosamond Laird being one of the city's younger singers, it may be said that her rendition of the difficult "Villanelle," by Dell Acqua surprised even her best friends, and her other solo, "When the World Sleeps Silently," by Hans Hermann, was delightfully sung.

Miss Rosalie Holberg, whose ability as a singer is well known, was in excellent voice and pleased everyone with her numbers.

A. R. White and H. R. Aldridge proved themselves not only the possessors of unusually good voices, but cultured singers as well. The work of the instrumentalists showed careful training and the result of consistent practice and each of their numbers was loudly applauded. Miss Addie Rowse scored her usual success, in a whistling solo and the readings by Mrs. Gus Hamer and Miss Francis proved pleasing interpolations, as well as giving the audience the opportunity of hearing two excellent dramatic readers. The complete program was as follows:
